CONGRATULATIONS CLASS OF 2020!

Fellowship of the Rings

As a result of this year's pandemic and quarantine, the Blue Jay Class of 2020 wasn't able to gather for its traditional class photo on Senior Day.

Memories were made, nonetheless, throughout the school year. At the beginning of the fall semester, the seniors gathered outside the Chapel of the North American Martyrs following the Ring Mass.

Dedication

Brother William Dardis, S.J.
1940-2019

There was a notable absence on the Jesuit High School campus as the Class of 2020 began its senior year last August.

Brother Billy Dardis, S.J., died earlier last summer. He was 79. His spirit, however, will live forever, not only on the grounds of Carrollton and Banks, but in the hearts of the thousands upon thousands of students and alumni whom he influenced.

Brother Dardis served the school community and that of his fellow Jesuits for more than 50 years. An ultimate example of a humble man for others, he served as a homeroom teacher, maintenance department director, handyman, groundskeeper, bus driver, leader of alumni, altar server, recorder of the dearly deceased, moderator of such clubs as the cheerleaders, and leader of alumni.

In the greater community, he was a friend to all, a fighter for the underdog and the poor, and a tireless promoter of school spirit.

He supported the struggling student as a tutor, lent an ear to the lonely student and always provided a warm smile just when it seemed to be needed, whether selling ice cream and popsicles after school or simply passing by in the halls.

He was the institutional memory of those corridors. Fittingly, he was inducted into the Hall of Honors in 2016. And earlier this year, a photographic tribute was installed along the first-floor hallway. It's hard to pass those pictures without eliciting a smile to his memory.

William Dardis was born in New Orleans on May 11, 1940, to Dr. William Dardis and Mary Katherine Schwab Dardis. In a family with deep ties to the school, Billy became a part of the Class of 1958.

Soon after graduation, he joined the Society of Jesus and was a brother in the order for nearly 61 of his 79 years. Most of that time was spent serving at his beloved alma mater.

His teaching, both to students and colleagues on the faculty and staff, came beyond the classroom, ranging from the athletic fields to the Commons, through Thanksgiving and Mission drives, at every Bazaar and fishing rodeo, and in the reverent participation in daily Masses. He gave us all invaluable lessons of life itself, a life always cognizant of the grace of our loving God.

In 2010, he received the annual Profile Award, nominated by the faculty for excellence in service.

The man who personified all that Jesuit High School has meant is sorely missed.

It is with deepest gratitude that The Blue Jay dedicates this Senior Issue to his memory.

We'll always miss you, Darlin' but we'll never forget you.

We did it! But, whew, what a journey it's been!

Four or five years ago your parents dropped you off at your new school.

You were probably nervous, as I know I was.

You met your Big Brother. You had met once before at student orientation but this time it was different. Now you are wearing a suit. You go into the second-floor hall with all the trophies and pictures and you are dragging your derriere across the floor making progress in line to drop off forms.

Suddenly this man starts yelling at you that you did not read a piece of paper that your parents made you hastily sign in the car on the way to Jesuit that morning. You hand in the paper. You go into a room to get your picture taken. You're sweating because you are wearing a suit and it's a humid 98 degrees outside.

Your day ends with a trip up four flights of stairs to drop off the 50 pounds of textbooks at your locker, and then down the same four flights of stairs again, only to wait for your parents in the courtyard back in the Louisiana summer heat.

And then realizing that you have another five years to go.

Fast forward. Five years later, you see the end in sight. That stage you worked so hard to cross is well in range.

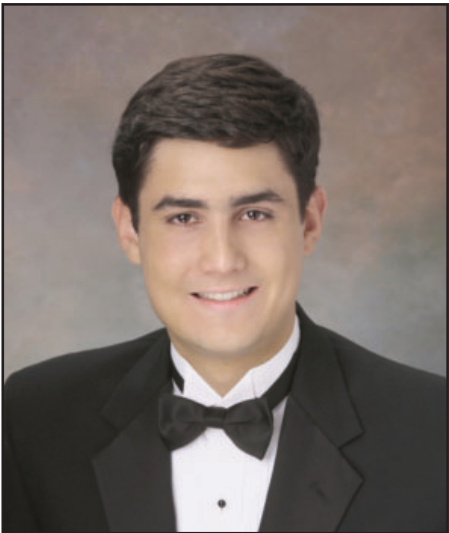

Only a world-changing event can stop you.

Before you can blink an eye, you're standing six feet apart, wearing a mask and gloves while waiting in line at the grocery store to buy toilet paper. Online school becomes the new normal with teachers presenting their classes via Zoom. The Senior Day festivities take place as a series of videos with driveby jambalaya. Graduation is put off until July! The cycle, ironically, complete in another hot, New Orleans summer.

Although many are disappointed about how the year ended, know that we each determine how we look back on our time at Jesuit.

You can look back angrily at how you missed the last nine weeks of your senior

State of the Blue Jay address

We've missed out on much but it has made us stronger and better men, Marks tells community

By Effy Marks

Student Council President

Editor's note: Because of the coronavirus pandemic, this year's annual State of the Blue Jay address could not be delivered live in the Traditions Courtyard. Instead, Student Council President Effy Marks recorded his speech for the Virtual Senior Day on Friday, May 1, which was presented online. Here is what he had to say to his fellow seniors.

On March 12, most of us went to school to take the last of our third-quarter exams and thought nothing of it. What we did not realize is that that Thursday would be the last time the whole Jesuit community would be together this school year, and for seniors, the last time we would be here as Jesuit students.

Today is not a day any one of us could have envisioned. For the seniors, we all thought we would be dressed in our suits about to be dismissed from the courtyard by Top, something we have all dreamt of since our first year. For the rest of the student body, you would be watching a class go by and looking forward to your own future endeavors. And for me, I thought I would weigh 20 pounds less.

Late this year, we were hit with the coronavirus pandemic. This unfortunate reality should not put a damper on an otherwise terrific year. Although the year didn't end as planned, we stuck with what we have learned as Jesuit students and powered through. We as a student body have excelled in all aspects of being Blue Jays.

Academically, we have six

current students with perfect ACT scores and 22 National Merit Semifinalists.

Athletically, the swim team won its 36th straight metro title and finished as state runner-up. The soccer and basketball teams had exciting seasons reaching the state quarterfinals. The football team, although not having finished our season in the Superdome, experienced a day that none of us will ever forget: Oct. 4, the day we beat Holy Cross in the 100th Rivalry Game. After the countless hours of offseason preparation, the tennis, rugby, and baseball teams were poised to make a run for state.

Corresponding with our academics and athletics, came school spirit. The Gizzard was there for support throughout the year at every game and pep rally, sometimes as early as two hours before the game, never taking a step down in energy level. This same energy helped power us to be champions at the Carrollton Clash to keep the trophy on campus for another year. Together through our individual interests and talents, we have all contributed to what makes our school great.

As I mentioned before, the end of the school year has been full of challenges. The world is in a crisis, and our lives have been abruptly turned upside down. We need to mourn those lost and take responsibility to help those affected.

Rather than succumbing to fear, doubt, and anger, let us cross that bridge and use this as an opportunity to rediscover our faith in those values that have been instilled in us by our families and our Jesuit community.

Let us restore solidarity, loyalty, kindness, and compassion. Let us find a way, every day, with selfless acts of kindness, to be men for others. The world, now more than ever, needs the men of Jesuit.

To next year's Student Council, you will be faced with hard work and difficult decisions for the next year. I encourage you to continue to persevere throughout the year despite any criticism you will hear and the fatigue you may feel.

To this year's Executive Board, thank you. I would not have lasted a day without the continuous effort and creativity of everyone on the board. This is something I am truly grateful for, especially the guidance, patience, and compassion of Mr. Genovese and Mr. Bairnsfather.

And to all current students, faculty, and staff, I would like to say thank you for making this an amazing year for all of us. Thank you for making me smile every day as I walked these hallways. Thank you for the tears of laughter that I would experience at least once a week at the lunch table. Thank you for the class lessons I will never forget because of the strange yet effective ways of teaching them.

A year ago at this time, I was worried about how I would manage the responsibility I had undertaken. How would I manage the workload of E-Board on top of trying to keep up with my regular co-curriculars? The answer to this question was all of you. Everyone has been there for support and truly shown that Jesuit is a school full of men for others.

Jesuit can be an intimidating place at first blush. As an incoming eighth grader, it looks like a world of adulthood, with big guys full of swagger wearing a well-worn uniform. This uniform is similar to yours, but you have just slid into for the first time, and it doesn't make you feel the same sense of confidence or community that the older guys seem to carry so easily.

Anyone who doesn't admit to the insecurity of their first days here is either kidding himself or teasing all of us. But the gradual comfort we gain in wearing that uniform, and the sense of awareness in knowing that we are carrying on generations of a commitment to serving others, hopefully fills all of us with a tremendous sense of legacy.

I believe that we all help each other in that ease and comfort and even pride in wearing that uniform, even with the PHs that come from our imprecisions. My older brothers still have their uniform shirts signed by all their classmates on their last days of their senior years. I'll admit I'm jealous of that. We 2020 guys don't get that opportunity. Or our prom. Or our running out the door onto Will Clark Field, which I'll miss more.

But for my senior friends, we have a link that is unspoken, and the commonality of sharing a modest sacrifice will only add to our bond as time progresses.

And for you who will be Jesuit students next year and beyond, you are presented with an awesome opportunity, with God's help, to rebuild not only traditions at Carrollton and Banks, but to lift up an entire society, and even a world. Our faith will serve you well, but so will Jesuit as an institution and a community.

For these reasons I have been blessed and honored to be a representative of this wonderful student body. Be safe, Be strong, and for one last time: Go Jays!

year, or remember the four years and three quarters you spent with your friends and all the good times.

When I started at Jesuit, people would tell me all the time, "High school is the best time of your life." While memories made in high school last a lifetime, there are still hundreds of memories that are yet to be made of birthday parties, college days, first dates, weddings, and childbirths. There is a big world outside of Carrollton and Banks waiting to be explored.

While academics are important, the experiences and friendships will be what we remember most. Just look at the comments of best memories from your classmates on the following pages.

While after graduation we might lose touch with some friends, there are new friends somewhere out there waiting to finally meet someone like you.

We will also experience times in our life that will feel hopeless. Am I smart enough, strong enough, or talented enough to pursue my dreams, we might ask ourselves. Remember that we'll never walk alone. Our true friends will always be by our side through the good times and the bad times.

Napoleon Hill, the author of "Think and Grow Rich," wrote, "Every adversity, every failure, and every heartache, carries with it the seed of an equivalent or greater benefit." The issue with seeds, however, is they take a long time to grow.

Right now, many people only see the negative aspect of the situation. It takes time to realize all the good that comes from tough times and how in reality, and with some later perspective, they are not as bad as we might have thought.

As we prepare to step foot onto a college campus (whenever that might actually be), remember how we were infants at the start of the war on terror. How we were just starting grade school and made it through Hurricane Katrina. And how we finished high school amid a worldwide pandemic.

While each situation was difficult, we still got through it. Each encounter, each experience made us stronger.

The road that the Class of 2020 took to graduation was certainly the road less traveled.

I think we all can agree, however, that the destination was well worth it.

Passafume brings good cheer, joyous spirit to every endeavor

By Ryan Castellon
Staff Writer

2020 Blue Jay of the Year

Upon entering any room, senior Lloyd Passafume receives a greeting not unlike that of Norm from the 1980s sitcom “Cheers.” A jubilant “Lloyd!” is shouted out by everyone present.

With a contagious smile and an omnipresence on campus, it’s easy to understand why.

Passafume has held prominent roles in two of the largest organizations at Jesuit – The Blue Jay Band and the Philelectic Society.

His role as Drum Major in his fifth year in the band would have come as a shock to the eighth-grade Lloyd, who says his interest in the saxophone “originally started out as a way to get out of P.E.”

However, his outlook quickly changed, and he now expresses his gratitude to the organization for the opportunities he has been given, especially the chance “to see the growth arc of and act as a confidante for [his] bandmates.”

Those bandmates don’t disagree with his “Papa Bear” description of himself, with senior Scott Cavanagh noting that Passafume “exemplifies all the qualities of a great leader.”

Speaking of “Papa Bear,” Passafume also was featured in two prominent musical roles with the Phils since last year; one being as “Papa Bear” in “Shrek: The Musical!” and the other, the leading role as The Baker in “Into the Woods.” The latter role, he said, was “one of the most challenging things I have ever had to do.”

Despite the challenge, he enjoyed the work and cites both facets of music – vocal and instrumental – as disciplines he may pursue in college.

Although Passafume doesn’t consider himself to be a renaissance man, when asked about his well-roundedness with co-curriculars, he refers to a motto that he said he chooses to live by daily: “Never think you can’t do something you really want to do.”

For Passafume, his friends serve as the greatest influence for him, a point that those friends happily say the same of him.

Fellow Phil Ronnie Bergeron says that as soon as Passafume walks into the Phils’ office, “the whole mood of the room immediately becomes more joyous.”

Outside of school, Passafume’s central passions can be viewed on his YouTube channel, where he displays his saxophone skill and critiques everything from “Star Wars” films to “Stranger Things.” He is mesmerized by how “transporting” both the movies and the television program can be and how they can “take you to a different world.”

For those who have not had the pleasure of an interaction with Lloyd Passafume, you can catch him this fall strolling the halls of Louisiana State University, where he plans to study Business.

Shoot him a smile, and he’ll likely greet you with his trademark, “Hey, buddy!”

Whether it is on the field leading the Blue Jay Band in a halftime show, on stage with the Philelectic Society, or simply an encounter between classes, Lloyd Passafume brings a bright and cheery disposition to life at Jesuit. His good nature and his embodiment of school spirit make him our choice for Blue Jay of the Year.

Competitions to parades, games to concerts, had Blue Jay Bands striking all the right notes

By Mac McCabe
Staff Writer

The Jesuit High School Marching and Concert Bands faced a myriad of challenges and adventures this year and have come out on top after grueling months of hard work.

The Marching Band worked hard this year to put together its field show titled “Machine.” The show was performed at countless football games both at home and away while supporting the Blue Jays. Their hard work also came to a culmination on Oct. 28 at the District VI LMEA Marching Festival at Metairie’s Joe Yenni Stadium.

There, under the direction of drum majors Lloyd Passafume and Hunter Richardson, they performed their show before a panel of judges alongside fellow bands from across the greater New Orleans area.

In a spectacular showing, the Blue Jay Marching Band, joined by the Jayettes Dance Team, scored the highest marks in General Band, Percussion, Auxiliary, and Drum Majors, sweeping all categories for the first time in two years.

Meanwhile, the Jesuit Jazz Band led by Jason Giaccone featured at multiple smaller events throughout the year, showing off its unique musically stylings and personal flair. The Jazz Band was featured prominently at Jesuit’s Open House night, setting the mood for prospective students as they rounded off their tours. They also traveled downtown for a late-night gig performing in front of many esteemed guests at the annual Celebration Gala and Auction.

Through Carnival season, the Marching Band, the Jazz Band and the MCJROTC ensemble, often joined by the Jesuit Cheerleaders and the Jayettes, marched through the streets of the city in several parades. The military marching unit kicked off the season marching with the Knights of Sparta, followed by its annual appearance with the Krewe of Hermes.

The Marching Band members are always highlights of the Krewe of Carrollton, as well as the Krewe of Bacchus. The Jazz Band rode in style as a part of the Krewe of Mid-City, serving on the Captain’s Caravan float before rushing out to join their fellow musicians in taking it to the streets with Bacchus.

In Bacchus, the band illuminated the night with special lighting effects along with their dance moves.

Finally, the Concert Band, conducted by Band Director Joe Caluda, had a chance to show off this year once again during the annual Christmas concert.

Performing traditional works, as well as amazing pieces like “Wizards in Winter” and accompanied by marvelous light shows put on by D.J. Galiano, the band put on a stunning show both in person and digitally as the concert was simulcast to various alumni and family members watching from afar.

While the spring concert was canceled by the pandemic shutdown, the band still rallied together and put on an end-of-year slideshow, containing dozens of pictures from throughout the band year and showcasing its seniors for one last time.

At the end of the event, Caluda presented the Rev. Elwood P. Hecker Award, given to two band members who work tirelessly behind the scenes and act as the driving forces behind the band, both on and off the field.

This year, the awards were presented to seniors Joey Grana and Lloyd Passafume, for their exemplary careers with the band.

Blue Jay Athlete of Year Jordan is bound for Yale

By Carlo Barrera
Staff Writer

In the final fight scene of “Rocky IV,” the long, action-packed montage begins when the Rocky Balboa delivers a right hook to Ivan Drago, drawing blood upon impact. In that moment, Rocky realizes that the tall Soviet monster is “not a machine, he’s a man.”

Similarly, Grant Jordan has managed to fight defenses with both his arm and his legs, exposing their human weaknesses, since he was 6 years old.

Even back then, Jordan played quarterback. He played for the Girard Playground rec team, a team that was known for throwing around 10 passes a game – unheard of in football at that age. His ability to throw accurate out-routes and go-routes made his team look like an “all-star” franchise.

From there, he took his talent to Christian Brothers School, where he became an integral part of an improving team. By his seventh-grade season, his team was able to win both of their games played in the annual Gatlinburg tournament. Jordan was a rising star.

When he arrived on the campus of Carrollton and Banks, Jordan made the eighth-grade roster as one of two quarterbacks. Unfortunately, his season ended when he separated his left shoulder in the second game of the season.

Jordan would go on to make the varsity football team as a freshman. He looked up to first-string quarterback Denny McGinnis ’17, describing him as a “very strong leader.”

Jordan was moved to safety in his sophomore year, a rough transition for the aspiring QB. After practice, he would see a

After a successful football season, Blue Jay quarterback made it official, signing with Yale University, where he hopes to play football in the coming fall season.

2020 Blue Jay Athlete of the Year

trainer for another two hours to maintain his throwing techniques and mechanics.

In his junior year, Jordan remained at safety, and wouldn’t get the starting job just yet. Another one of his mentors, Robert McMahon ’19, would be the quarterback for the season. Throughout the 2018 season, Jordan learned and developed from watching McMahon play.

The day after the 2018 playoff loss to John Curtis, Jordan went straight to training. He knew “this was my one shot to prove to everybody that I should be the quarterback” and that “I could be one of the best in the state,” he said.

He refined both his physical and his leadership skills, resulting in an outstanding senior year performance on the leading the Blue Jay football team.

Jordan finished the 2019 season with almost 3,000 yards and 29 touchdowns on a team that went 7-5. Jordan wasn’t alone in fight. His main targets were Luke Besh, Luke LaForge and Grant Moreau. “It was an honor to play with these guys,” Jordan said.

Another of Grant’s weapons that season was Rader Jackson, his running back. Their chemistry with the read option made such plays effective all season.

Jordan also was quick to point out the offensive line, comprised of Effy Marks, Brian Balestra, Jake Berault, Max McMahon, Dalton Baglio, and Jake Murphy, saying that not a single play could have happened without them.

That offense made key plays all season long, especially in the 100th Rivalry Game against Holy Cross. In that game, tied 14-14 with four minutes left, the offense drove down the field for a touchdown – a run by Jordan.

But Jordan said that wasn’t the best game in which he’s ever played. That accolade belongs to the playoff game against John Curtis. It was a one-sided game until the offense got going. This is the game where Jordan said he pictures that scene from “Rocky IV.” Even though Curtis was the stronger team, Jesuit found ways to cut into the big lead, falling just short in a 34-27 loss.

When asked about his stats and his leadership, Jordan was quick to point out the people who blocked for him, ran the ball with him, and caught his passes. Everyone on his team took that “leadership role” in one way or another, which he says is why the team was so effective this year.

Despite his successful play this year, Jordan just wants to be seen as a “friendly, good guy” in the class of 2020. “I really do love the guys in our class.” He knows that we’ll always be here for one another because of our incredibly tight bond.

Grant will go on to Yale University, where he’ll be playing quarterback and studying business. He also plans to take part in theater at Yale, making Mrs. Arthurs-Goldberg proud, of course.

Another member of the staff he’d like to mention is Top Abshire, who, Jordan says, helped make him into the man he is today.

A family man, Grant also understands that he couldn’t have gotten anywhere without the support of his parents, Michelle and Greg, or his siblings, Eve and Garrett.

2019-20 a successful, if incomplete, year in sports

By Jonathan LeBrun
Editor-in-Chief

From the playing fields to the courts to the pools, Jesuit Blue Jays put forth strong efforts throughout the year in various athletic events. Here’s a brief roundup of the year in sports.

Football

The Blue Jay Football season finished with a 7-5 record. The Jays were led by Head Coach Mark Songy. Some notable wins this season were against Hellen Cox (42-12), St. Augustine (37-21) and their biggest victory a thriller against archrival Holy Cross (20-14). After a victory against Shaw in the first round of the playoffs, the season ended against John Curtis in the second round.

Multiple members of this year’s team are going on to play at the collegiate level including quarterback Grant Jordan going to the Ivy League at Yale University; defensive lineman Sonny Hazzard and wide receiver Joe Lombardi, heading to the University of Louisiana at Lafayette; offensive lineman Brian Balestra joining Georgetown; defensive lineman Gentry Major heading to Rhodes College; and offensive lineman Max McMahon moving on to Berry College.

Soccer

Under the leadership of Coach Hubie Collins, the soccer team finished the season with a record of 16-4-4. They beat St. John by the huge margin of 8-0 and repeated the feat again later in the season with a 8-0 against Archbishop Rummel.

Sebi Maraldo (Millsaps College) and Seth Trotter

(Johnson and Wales of Miami) will both be playing soccer at their colleges next season.

Basketball

The basketball team finished its season with a record of 16-14. Coach Chris Jennings led the team into the playoffs where the Jesuit hoopsters made it to the second round, wrapping up their year with a loss at Scotlandville.

Point guard Kyle Haupt will be playing basketball at Millsaps College next year.

Cross Country

The cross country team placed sixth at the All State Sugar Bowl Classic, second at the District Meet and fifth in the State Championship. The team’s head coach was Rudy Horvath.

Luke LaCour will be running at the University of Dallas next year.

Swimming

For an incredible 36th straight time, Jesuit Swimming won both Metro and District titles. The team also was a runner-up in the State meets. The team was led by Coach Bret Hanemann Swimmer Michael Foley will continue his swimming career at Louisiana State University.

Unfinished seasons

Tennis and baseball were both cut short due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

In baseball, seniors Will Helmers (LSU), Chris Favalora (Spring Hill College) and Colin Loupe (University of New Orleans) will return to the diamond in February playing college baseball.

In tennis, Pierce Westbrook (Howard University) and Jojo Sandoz (Christian Brothers University) will be playing collegiate tennis next year.

Kevin Dyer, S.J., offers Reconciliation on the edge of Will Clark Field with Solomon Street becoming a drive-up confessional.
